GETTING GUESTS CLOSER THAN EVER TO MOOSE, BISON AND OTHER ANIMALS

Advance online tickets go on sale Aug. 10

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: Aug. 10, 2020

EATONVILLE, Wash.-- Northwest Trek Wildlife Park is reopening its Keeper Adventure Tours on Friday, Aug. 14, with timed online tickets and enhanced safety protocols designed to help guests connect up close with wildlife while staying safe and healthy. Timed online tickets will go on sale Aug. 10.

The 90-minute Keeper Adventure Tours take guests aboard an open-air Jeep on paved roads rarely traveled, on gravel tracks and occasionally off-road to see bison, moose, mountain goats, elk, deer, swans and more in the park's 435-acre Free-Roaming Area.

If guests book now, they can see Northwest Trek's baby animals and experience the bison "rut" or breeding season, with grunts, rolls in the dirt, and sparring between the bulls.

"We are thrilled to reopen yet another part of the Northwest Trek experience to our community," said Deputy Director Rick Dietz. "Now, more than ever, it's important to offer these safe, exciting adventures in nature. Guests can hop aboard our Jeep not quite knowing what they'll experience, and they'll step off with a new appreciation for bison, moose, mountain goats and other native Northwest animals."
